David Tyson
Lead Clinical Nurse Specialist
Uro-Oncology

I commenced training 1980 and qualified in 1983. I obtained the Diploma in Health Care Management in 1998 and took the post of Ward Manager in 1999. I was appointed Clinical Nurse Specialist in November 2001 and took over the Lead CNS role in 2004. During this time I created the Specialist Nursing Service, providing high level support to patients and carers affected by urological cancers, particularly those facing complex treatment decisions.

I am responsible for the provision of core education to qualified nurses up to and including Specialist Nurse level. Provide Specialist Uro-Oncological education to staff within the Trust, to nurses and General Practitioners in primary care and as part of the Bradford University's Specialist Nursing Module.

My principle areas of specialist interest include:

- The support of patients with localised prostate cancer and muscle invasive bladder cancer including patients undergoing bladder reconstruction.
- The treatment of erectile dysfunction caused by cancer treatments.
